

Dear Colleagues:

We are pleased to introduce Thomas Choi (Arizona State University) and Daniel Guide (Pennsylvania State University) as the incoming editors of JOM, starting July 1, 2011. As many of you know, both Dan and Tom are excellent researchers with very strong reputations in the field. In addition, both have been very professional and hard working associate editors for JOM over the past 5 years.

Tom is well known for his theory based and insightful case-study research. Dan is one of the leaders in the area of green and sustainable operations. He takes a very empirically grounded approach to analytical modeling. We strongly believe that their complementary skills make them extremely well qualified to lead the future growth and continually increasing quality of the JOM. In addition, Tom and Dan will surely open up new areas of interest that attract an even larger set of scholars into the JOM community.

Any papers submitted to the JOM after July 1 will be handled by Tom and Dan. We (Ken and Morgan) will continue to follow through on any papers that are currently in a stage of revision or are placed into revision before that date.

It has been our honor to serve you as Co-editors for the past five years. We truly are enthusiastic about the future prospects of the JOM under Dan and Tom's leadership.

Best regards,

Ken Boyer and Morgan Swink

Co-Editors-in-Chief, Journal of Operations Management
